Asks as to redemption of trade dollars

Treasury of the U.S.,
March 6, 1889.

Respectfully returned to the writer, with the information that the redemption of trade dollars ceased on Sept. 3, 1887, as under the terms of the act of March 3, 1887, they were only redeemable for six months after the passage of the act referred to. They are now purchased as bullion by the U.S. Mints, in conformity with Circular No. 78 herewith.
